

From Art to Action

In partnership with Friends of Five Creeks and River of Words, environmental artist Zach Pine recently led a series of creek-focused art projects in Berkeley. Berkeley High students made a mobile of ivy and trash on Codornices Creek (upper rt.). Friends of Five Creeks and community members created a stream out of rocks and plants above the pipe that conveys Schoolhouse Creek to the Bay (below left). Homeschoolers made art using found natural materials on Codornices Creek (below right). Photos of the project are on exhibit through Feb. 11 in Berkeley (see p. 7).

